

What Should I Expect From My Four-year-old?

Physical Development:

- Weight gain of 6 pounds
- Height should be double what the child's length was at birth
- May sleep 10-12 hours nightly, may still need an afternoon nap
- Appetite varies, with like and dislike of certain foods changing

Language:

- Approximate vocabulary of 1500 or more words
- Asks questions continually
- Can carry on a conversation with few sound errors
- Speaks in sentences
- Listens to and tells "tall tales"
- Carries out a 3-4 step command
- When asked, he can give his own name, age, birthday, sex, and address
- Knows several favorite songs and nursery rhymes
- Asks questions using Who? What? When? Why?
- Talks almost constantly
- May experiment in using vulgar words

Learning and Problem Solving:

- Stays with an activity for 10-15 minutes or more if interesting to him
- Understands opposites
- Understands the concept of four, can count out loud to 10
- Identifies all 8 basic colors
- From memory, identifies missing objects from a group of three objects
- Understands past and present
- Answers questions of why we have a book, house, cup, sock, etc.
- Groups objects into food, animals, or toys
- Increased understanding of time, knows day and night
- Acts out real life in play

Motor:

- Draws a house and a man with two parts
- Strings small objects on string, like Cheerios or Fruit Loops
- Climbs a ladder
- Hops on 1 foot
- Builds a tower with 10 blocks
- Stands and balances on 1 foot for 10 seconds
- Catches a ball when bounced
- From an example, he can print capital letters and simple words randomly on blank paper
- Opens a door by turning the doorknob
- Completes 5-6 piece puzzles
- Holds a pencil appropriately
- Walks forward, sideways, and backwards
- Walks downstairs by placing one foot on each step

Self-Help:

- Dresses and undresses self, including buttoness90 471.84 56Td 3laj /TT1 1 Tf1 -1MCID 53

